

2019

The Contributors

Contributors Contributors

Follow this and additional works at: <https://archium.ateneo.edu/budhi>

---

Recommended Citation

Contributors, Contributors (2019) "The Contributors," Budhi: A Journal of Ideas and Culture: Vol. 23: No. 1, Article 9.

Available at: <https://archium.ateneo.edu/budhi/vol23/iss1/9>

This The Contributors is brought to you for free and open access by the Ateneo Journals at Archium Ateneo. It has been accepted for inclusion in Budhi: A Journal of Ideas and Culture by an authorized editor of Archium Ateneo.

The Contributors

Aurelio S. Agcaoili teaches at the University of Hawaii in the areas of public policy, linguistics, popular culture, diasporic literatures, cultural-literary relations (Philippines and Southeast Asia), Philippine critical discourses, and modern Philippine drama and cinema. He received his PhD from the University of the Philippines Diliman under a presidential scholarship, taught in this university for many years and served its Center for Creative Writing as a fellow before migrating to the US, and was newspaper editor in the Philippines, Los Angeles, and Honolulu. He was a visiting professor of the University of the Philippines Baguio (twice) and the Mariano Marcos State University (thrice). He has received a number of awards in the US and the Philippines for his work as a creative writer (novel, short story, poetry, and critical essay) and as an educator. For the undergraduate and the masters, he studied the classics, philosophy, and management. He writes in Ilokano, English, and Tagalog. <aurelioa@hawaii.edu>

Michael Charleston “Xiao” Chua is an Assistant Professorial Lecturer at the De La Salle University, History Department and a Senior Lecturer at the University of the Philippines, Department of Broadcast Communication. He graduated with a Bachelor of Arts (2005) and Masters of History (2010) from the University of the Philippines, Diliman. He is also a Ph.D. Anthropology candidate from the same university. Along with these appellations, he is the co-author of the monograph Bonifacio: Ang Unang Pangulo and writes a Saturday column for the Manila Times. Taking to the stage of broadcast media, he has become one of the most active historians in the Philippine media: He was an original bottom liner in “The Bottomline with Boy Abunda.” A historical consultant for Lourde de Veyra’s “History with Lourde” and the television series “Ilustrado” and “Katipunan.” Lastly, he is the creator of “Xiao Time”— a television segment which is now an Abante Sunday column. <xiaoking_beatles@yahoo.com>

---

Budhi: A Journal of Ideas and Culture XXIII.1 (2019): 141–44.

Zenaida Hamada-Pawid or Manang Briggs as she is popularly known in peace and development circles, dedicated more than 30 years of her life to protecting the rights of the Indigenous Peoples (IP) of the Cordillera region in northern Philippines, focusing especially on peacebuilding and the restoration of their ancestral rights. She represented the IPs during the government’s peace negotiations with the Cordillera People’s Liberation Army and the Communist Party of the Philippines, and was instrumental in creating peace zones in the region. Manang Briggs’ presentation of the perspectives of the IP of the Cordillera was vital to the passage of the Indigenous People’s Rights Act (IPRA), the most important policy tool for IP self-determination. Manang Briggs is the former NCIP chair and the 2018 Ozanam Awardee of Ateneo de Manila University. <manangbriggs@gmail.com>

JPaul S. Manzanilla is a graduate student at the Department of Southeast Asian Studies of the National University of Singapore. He is currently writing a dissertation that examines the interplay between photography and the Philippine nation, art and technology, media and modernity, and history and memory. <jpaulmanzanilla@gmail.com>

Felice Prudente Sta. Maria is an internationally awarded author of non-fiction, an advocate of cultural action as civic action, and, by avocation, a food historian specializing in the Spanish and American colonial periods of the Philippines. Her most recent book, co-authored with Singaporean food explorer Bryan Koh, is Kain Na, the first illustrated guide to Philippine cuisine. She is a 2019 Outstanding Citizen of Quezon City awardee for her body of work. She was a Commissioner for Cultural Heritage at National Commission for Culture and Arts, and for Social and Human Sciences at UNESCO National Commission of the Philippines. <felicepstamaria@gmail.com>

Gail M. Presbey is a Professor of Philosophy at University of Detroit Mercy and the Director of the James Carney Latin American Solidarity Archives in the History Department at UDM (2002–present). Her areas of expertise are philosophy of nonviolence and African philosophy, with current studies and research on Africa, Latin America, Mohandas Gandhi’s movement, feminism, and Pan-Africanism. She engages in interdisciplinary work that involves philosophy, world history, and political theory. She has engaged in research in Kenya, South Africa, Ghana, and India, having received a two-year J. William Fulbright Senior Scholar grant (Kenya) as well as subsequent Fulbright grants (India and Brazil). She has four edited books and over fifty articles and book chapters published, as well as republications and translations in several languages. Her M.A. and Ph.D. in Philosophy are from Fordham University. She has completed a graduate certificate program in World History at Wayne State University. Her home page can be accessed at <http://presbegm.faculty.udmercy.edu/>. <presbegm@udmercy.edu>

Daniel Chen Ratilla is a third-generation Chinese immigrant whose grandparents chose to become Filipino citizens. He received his bachelor's degree in Industrial Design from the University of the Philippines-Diliman, from which he graduated with the Latin honor of Magna cum Laude. He worked for two years as an industrial designer for a multinational company before deciding to shift career paths to focus on environmental concerns. He is currently a graduate student under the Environmental Management program of the Ateneo de Manila University. His research interests include forest and coastal ecosystems, biodiversity, and gender equity through environmental management. In his free time, he enjoys reading about a diverse range of topics or practices his Chinese calligraphy, that is, when he's not preoccupied with plans for the next family hiking trip. <dcratilla@gmail.com>